The professor's way of teaching is really entertaining, and he shows great passion while teaching and lets everyone love the subject. However, if you don't write notes after him for one lecture you will be lost, which means he should change the way he teaches a bit and should give us more exercises to solve. Because he only gives us maximum of 4 questions per topic, which doesn't really cover all the ideas in that topic. Moreover, when it comes to exams, we find that the questions are really much more difficult than what we were getting in the quizzes through out the semester.

Taught in the same order as Professor Badawi taught it.

1) The material explained in the classroom is similar to the quiz provided; HOWEVER, the questions asked on the midterms and finals were not similar AT ALL to the material explained in class.

2) The structure of the questions asked in class and in quizzes does not match the structure of questions asked on midterms AT ALL.

3) I believe that the professor should explain why linear algebra would ever be needed in real life by providing word problems, as for now, I personally have no idea where I could apply what I have learned from linear algebra.

In conclusion, the type of questions asked on the midterms or final are not even close to the ones explained in class or provided in the quizzes.

The notes enough were not sufficient for me to fully understand the course. The book was no up to pace to what the professor was teaching it just confused me more. I struggled studying for this course. But the professor made the class interesting and it was nice to see a professor very passionate about his subject.

Don't change a thing. The material taught in the order you did was wonderful and connected everything made it much easier to understand. Your explanation was so good I never felt the need to self study.

1) I believe that the professor should explain the material in the same order that other professors follow. The way that the professor explained made the course confusing to me and it made it extremely difficult for me to know what lessons are we taking because he does not mention what sections or chapters we will start.

2) The professor should make the type of questions on the midterms similar to the type of questions found in quizzes or class.

3) Either (2) written above, or the professor should explain examples in class that are the same language as the midterms and final.
